"It pours inky purple and has 14.5 per cent alcohol and this big Barossa drop is tremendous value at $23. The nose has fruitcake scents and vibrant blackcurrant flavour comes through on the front of the palate. Satsuma plum, Turkish delight, chocolate and spice fruit characters meld with nutty oak on the middle palate and dusty tannins hold sway at the finish".

"Pirathon is an ancient word for pinnacle. This shiraz from the north-western Barossa is a dark, inky purple in the glass with black plum and toasty vanilla oak along with fruit cake notes and clove spice. Excellent fruit flavours are full-bodied, rich and intense. Good support from unobtrusive oak and chalky tannins add to the structure and the finish is long. This is a robust, distinguished wine with excellent balance and drinkable now and well into the future. Outstanding value".
